

10 LITTLE THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT JANELL

1 Janell's greatest gift by far is her ability to create colossal chocolate chip cookies. She has no doubt that the one thing people will miss most about her when she is dining at the banqueting table in heaven are her colossal cookies.

2 Janell really wishes her husband, Rob, was on the PGA Tour. She keeps practicing her wave in hopes that one day she will hear, "And there's Rob's wife, Janell, beaming at this victory."

3 Raising a family is Janell's most treasured life memory. If she lives to be a 100, she is certain that nothing will be as challenging, exhausting, frustrating, exhilarating, or rewarding as the rearing and educating of her three amazing twenty-somethings: Candace (25), Brooke & Grant (21).

4 Janell is a born teacher. Every year she heralds, "This probably will be my last year teaching writing to home educated students and yet, she continues. One of her earliest memories, ages 7-8, is teaching her lifetime friend, Phyllis, in her garage. Notebooks, library system, and all. Today, Phyllis is a fabulous teacher herself!

5 Janell loves to travel. Whether she's sipping high tea with her daughter in London, trekking up the Gemmi Pass in Switzerland, or speaking to women in Thailand, Janell loves seeing new places!

6 Janell is waiting for the chance to appear on "Dancing with the Stars!" No desire to wear a skimpy costume, but every desire to dance!

7 Gelato is Janell's greatest weakness. She wishes she lived in Europe where she could eat

Stracciatella twice a day. Her idea of the perfect day: strolling a winding street in Italy while eating her gelato!

8 Janell's sure wishes she could have made a living being as crazy as Mary on "So You Think You Can Dance!" Who knew screaming and acting like a complete crazy woman could be a job?

9 Janell needs to join Soccer Moms Anonymous. Standing on the sidelines or sitting in the bleachers of one of her son's soccer games is the way Janell likes to spend a day. Sometimes, she wanders by soccer fields on Saturdays and pretends she is going to a game. She needs help.

10 Janell loves holding her husband's hand. The strength of his hand makes all her worries go away.
